1. Acoustic Leak Detection for Operators (0.6 CEU's)

Active Leakage Control is a critical component in Water Loss Management. While utilities can make significant gains through top-down analysis of consumption, every utility should be proactively engaged in some form of coordinated and prioritized leak detection program, in order to maximize real loss savings. This hands-on, one day workshop will support water utility operators in meeting their utility's water loss management targets by teaching them to locate unreported leakage in their systems through use of a range of acoustic leak detection equipment and methods. Participants will learn to implement a leak detection strategy that best fits their utility's budget, staff experience and resources. Course will be instructed by Mike Ippen. EOCP course #7836.

Early Bird Cost for this course is $250 for members/$275 non members if registered prior to March 7, 2016. After March 7th cost is $275 members/$300 non members. Cost includes lunch, coffee breaks, and CEU form submission to EOCP.

2. Automatic Control Valves: Function, Maintenance, Start-up, Troubleshooting (0.6 CEU's)

Friday April 8, 2016

This one day course provides detailed information on basic functions of automatic control valves. Includes how pressure reducing, relief and combination piloting systems work, main valve & pilot disassembly & maintenance techniques, startup & troubleshooting. Condensed version of Valve Courses 7196, 7198, & 7199. Demonstration valves and pilots are provided so students can practice disassembly and reassembly. Designed for any operator this course is a great introduction to control valves for the novice and a good refresher for more experienced operators. Course will be instructed by Greg Anderson. EOCP course #8167.
